

A WOMAN'S SECRET
LANGUAGE

Marc Ferguson

A Woman's Secret Language

by Marc Ferguson

As promised in the sales letter I would like to begin by addressing the elephant in the room. Being what to say to her after you have discovered her suddenly in your presence, in your life for the first time ever. And all you can think about is what to say to her.

To properly talk to a woman you must forget about ever not knowing her and begin with the knowledge of her presence, being what she herself brings to you.

This is normally speaking her appearance, it could be her clothes, her shoes, or her facial feature or features overall. Being the effect they have upon you. This is not difficult to do as the information you need to speak about is right in front of you, in front of your eyes.

Women actually communicate by resisting the normal flow of a man's thoughts which she will normally perceive if he lacks in confidence and is shy around her because she keeps her mind on the subject you are communicating to her, as I have outlined above.

The number 1 mistake guys make with a woman when speaking that kills the romantic vibe is they immediately might start talking about themselves. Usually in some kind of flattering tone of conversation.

She will of course test you to see if you are telling her the truth about your admiration of her clothing, her shoes or her looks. To pass her test do not speak about yourself but rather now that you have flattered her with a few compliments you can begin the process of asking her out on a date.

You are best to ask her out for a meal, or indeed as I advise; ask her to come to your place to prepare the meal together. Let her choose which, she feels most comfortable doing.

Once again to spark attraction and get a woman to chase you. If you haven't already spoken nicely and complimentarily about her shoes, or her shiny hair. Please do so, and you will achieve the goal of turning her on to you by sparking romantic attraction.

If you cannot think about something more to compliment her about. Talk to her about an average day in your life. So she can get an impression of what your day-to-day life entails. Or indeed ask her what she does for work or is she actually a mom, perhaps if she is, ask her if she is a single parent.

Or you can ask her all about her education if you get the impression from her that she is educated and speaking well articulately.

To impress upon her on your first date, your romantic attraction for her. Tell her how you are feeling, how she makes you feel. Simply being honest will let her know this as she will be intuitively be receiving, and perceiving your emotional feelings.

To indeed flirt with her. Pick a feature on her face or of her body such as her thinness, or her height, or the color of her eyes. This will give her the clue that you are indeed beginning to flirt with her now and if she flirts back with you, simply repeat did you just say to me and add what she said to you. This will let her know you are indeed a great listener.

To make her see you as the prize, and make her chase you. Simply try as hard as you can to refrain from conversation speaking wise. And stop talking, and begin to experience what it is like being with her. And her with yourself in the silence between you both. She will pick up on any feelings you have for her and if there is a level of comfort in this silence you are doing well.

To avoid the friend zone never speak about yourself in some kind of self-flattering way. Rather let your gentlemanly actions towards her show, opening a door, offering her a chair, or asking her is there any pressing thing about you she would like to know?

In the first 10 seconds of meeting do not ask her for her telephone number but rather ask her if she would like to have your number.

Now to give you the mostest and bestest advice I can give you. The best way to approach the art form of communicating with a woman is to pause in the immediate silence and expect to accurately perceive what her thoughts or emotions are ever flowing into her mind, and from her mind, traveling into your mind. To master this rudimentary telepathy occurring between you both. Simply speak what you find on, and as if, in your mind.

Further to this you can strive to have a complimentary notion about her forming in your mind. And then after pausing in silence. Speak to her this compliment. It must be something about what she has spoken to you, or your intuitive knowledge of what she is feeling towards you.

My hope is that by learning and following these instructions, because they will seem like an instruction. Until you have used this golden advice and indeed broken the ice between you and her and got well into the swing of getting to the easy now point of asking her out on a date.

The main reason why most of the world's population are separated from each other and forced into loneliness is the work of, and upon the nature of what any and every woman desires. To explain this obsession of hers. You must know and come to the full realization that a woman's mind, emotions and passion are indeed most and very different to yours as a man. You need to do things in a different way for you to be successful at:

- A. Asking her to speak with you.
- B. Asking her for her name and
- C. Asking her for her cell phone number.

I am about to give you another further secret in just a moment, but first of all some little education, about what is about to take place, between you both. You see, it is paramount, that you communicate with each other as human beings were first able to communicate with each other long ago, when human life began. In these times there was no excess baggage in the thoughts to mar and spoil the connection striving to be made by Love Herself on the behalf of both of you.

This advice you are reading from today as I write to you. Contains everything you need to capture the very essence of the heart and soul of a woman's desire for a loving gentleman in her life.

You must when you first approach her as stealthily as you are able without giving her a fright of any kind. Then say, hello my name is Harry. And if she wishes to continue with you she will say, hello I am Sally. Then this out the way. Give her a compliment as advised above and say to her, would you prefer a candle lit dinner in a restaurant, or a single candle on a table at my place with some fine food we'll cook together?

When she hears this she will acknowledge your very forthrightness, your confidence, and respond with her answer of meeting to cook at your place. Nothing any more complicated than this. Now during this evening as it unfolds do not talk about yourself as hard as this may be. Instead ask her. What are your goals and dreams in your future? Get her talking about her goals and dreams.

Then ask her if she has performed the one technique destined to see her easily or with some work obtain her most desired goal or goals. When she says yes to this. You can explain to her how, she must write the goal out on paper. Not on a computer or a cell phone what she desires. This is because the Holy Ghost, the Holy Spirit, the Comforter, the Counselor inside her. Being present in her subconscious mind. He will recognize her handwriting and read every word. Then He will set to, and guide her through her ordinary everyday thoughts, the step-by-step plan so as to instruct her through her mind on how to reach and realize her desired goal.

Now you have led the conversation into an area of knowledge that she would like to know more about. And I do not here refer to the achievement of her or your desire of goals alone. I refer to the method of; without any religious background, or without even any prayers on one's part. You can communicate with the Holy Ghost or the title you choose for Him.

Thus making the decision that you are just going to believe that He is going to fill the empty space we call our mind with the thoughts that He decides. Possessing the power of the Spirit of Truth of Dear Father Himself, who is the only and one true God who answers the prayers, wishes and desires of every person. Regardless of whether or not they are a Christian, a Muslim, a Hindu, or a Buddhist. This will really open up her mind to the possibilities you have merely encouraged her to adopt and believe in.

Leave this part of your conversation over dinner now. As this is the seed of a most beautiful flower she is now busy with her ability to multitask imagining. Always remember a woman is a child of Dear Father, God.

Simply let the evening go forth from this moment in silence between the two of you. And you will be able to as if, measure the joy of the burgeoning friendship between you both by way of a judgement, upon the level of comfort, of friendship feelings between you both during any silence.

If it is not there? You can look upon Love Herself, who is the power, the ever present presence striving to bring both of you together. And if there is no pleasure in the silence. You are not indeed a perfect match. And you as the man can stop the silence and ask her if she is feeling the same thing between you both that you are feeling, or rather sensing on an intuitive level.

And she will be feeling the same way and she will talk about this lack of desire for you. Giving you both the truth - Love is striving to reach you with. Now you are both free to end the dinner in truth and continue your lives as Love intends. Both still reaching for the one partner they can feel comfortable with during any silence.

Now leaving this alone. I will now concentrate on what to do if and when Love has you both very much enjoying any silence, between the two of you. If you'd like to know what to do? You may find it tough because you will not be expecting her joy in the silence or not to be thinking about any sex today.

Now please still do not talk about yourself and definitely do not talk about your feelings for her. Rather let the meal finish. And you can both say goodnight. Letting her know she can expect a text or a phone call from you in the near future.

Let 3 days pass by. And contact her to ask if she'd like to share a Hollywood movie together? And say you have chosen this as your next date because you know something that she'd love to find out about, over a coffee, or a tea, or a hot chocolate, or a wine, after the movie with a pizza together. Then if she accepts, or if she changes this date, to something else, such as a walk on the beach, or in a park garden like setting. Say yes. Giving her the choice, gifts her best romantic fantasy, the ability to be realized by both of you.

Now when after the movie during the cafe session, tell her a little about yourself. And of course be truthful about every single detail. This is important because the Holy Ghost within her will let her feelings know you are lying. Now this is only the second date. So please do not expect any physical intimacy between the two of you at this stage.

However if your time with her presents an opportunity to take her hand in yours, please do so. This is now between you not something at all strange or seemingly incorrect to do so. From this moment on forward Love will guide your thoughts. So be free of any need or desire to have sex with her. Keep these thoughts out of your mind. Until after the third date, however you both decide to share it with each other.

Now there are still a few more things you need to know about a woman at this stage of your dating. She will never keep you in the only friends zone, or ghost you. As long as you follow my advice to the letter given here now. Wait 24 hours after the timing of your third date and text her. And if you cannot text her. Send her some flowers or take her some flowers when you meet for a fourth date.

And in the text or upon the card note with these flowers, write the following. "I am the kind of man who will not sleep with just any woman for any reason, unless she is truly romantically inclined to suffer the necessary feelings to pass between the two of us from Love itself. Let's hold hands and perhaps we will strife for a kiss or two together".

Well, now the longer you tell her to wait, the more time she will dwell upon her fantasy romance between you and her that is now occurring. If and when you can tell her that you are so delighted that she also expresses her wish unspoken for a little more water to flow under the bridge of their love.

And is she considering her and you dating together, a relationship in the making? This exchange will gift her the space, and time she needs, to dwell her thoughts upon the relationship idea. Well I have given you and her the very best advice I can give. And now you are both on your own. To each day, each moment discover the wonders of your ever unfolding love affair.

Well, we're diving into the art of complimenting. A skill that can make or break your dating game. We're not just talking about telling her she's pretty. We're going deep into compliments that resonate on another level. It's not just about what you say, but how you say it. So if you want to stand out from the crowd stay reading.

1. "You're my favorite person to spend time with."

When it comes to compliments sometimes the simplest ones hit the hardest. Take this gem for example. You're my favorite person to hang with. It's straightforward but it packs a punch. You're telling her, that out of everyone in your life. She's the one you most enjoy being around. That's huge. This compliment is especially clutch in long term relationships. You know how things get a little too comfortable, maybe even routine. Dropping this line is like a shot of adrenaline. Reminding both of you about the spark, that's still there. The key to a great compliment is to make it genuine. Specific and to make it more than just looks. When you tell her she's your favorite person to hang with. You're hitting all of these notes. It boosts her self esteem and strengthens your relationship. So go ahead, be generous with those words, chances are she'll reciprocate.

2. "I've learned so much from talking with you."

Tell her you've learned something from her. It's not just about flexing your own knowledge or street smarts. It's about acknowledging her's too. Everyone wants to feel like they're adding value to someone's life. Especially in a relationship. Now, don't just throw this compliment around like confetti. If she's into politics and you've had some eye-opening conversations. Tell her that she's broadened your perspective. If she's a music buff and introduced you to some killer tracks. Let her know you appreciate her taste. The key here is to make it about more than just the words. It's about showing that you value her thoughts and, that you're not just there to teach but to learn from her too.

3. "You look amazing, as always."

Navigating the waters of complimenting a woman's appearance can be tricky. Especially if you're not super close yet. You don't want to make her feel like she only looks good with makeup. But you also don't want to imply she's over doing it when she decides to glam up. So what's the solution? Keep it simple and timeless with something like you look amazing as always. This compliment is your Swiss Army Knife. It works in almost any situation. Whether she's dressed to the nines, or rocking a casual look. This line shows you find her attractive no matter what. It's a safe yet effective way to make her feel good about herself. Without accidentally stepping on a landmine. Plus the as always part, subtly tells her, that you consistently find her attractive which is always a win.

4. "That was a good joke, you're pretty funny!"

You might think you've got to be the funny guy, the life of the party, right? But here's the deal. Women love to be funny too. And they want to know you appreciate their sense of humor. Trust me if you're always trying to one up her jokes. She's going to feel like she's competing with a standup comedian rather than dating one. So how do you show her you think she's hilarious? It's simple, laugh at her jokes when you're together. I mean genuinely laugh not that fake chuckle we can all do sometimes. And if she sends you a funny text. Hit her back with that cry - laugh emoji. It's like a digital round of applause for her comedic genius. Doing this not only shows you're into her but it also creates a more relaxed authentic vibe between you both. And let's be real. Who doesn't want a relationship where you can both crack up together.

5. "You're not like anyone I've ever met before"

Don't confuse this with the cringe worthy. . . you're not like other girls. We're talking about recognizing her unique qualities, that make her stand out in your eyes. This is about her quirks, her idiosyncrasies. The little things that make her, well, her. When you say this, you're telling her you value her for who she truly is not just the polished version of herself she might present on a first date. It's a nod to those less conventional traits, that she might be self-conscious about but, that you find utterly endearing. So next time you're struck by how she's different from anyone else you've known. Don't keep it to yourself. Let her know. Make her feel seen and appreciated in a way that few compliments can.

6. "You're really good at what you do"

Here's a compliment that will make her day. You're really good at what you do. Now, this isn't just about acknowledging her job performance. It's about recognizing her passion, her craft. The thing that lights her up. Let's say she's an artist, a musician or maybe she's killing it in her business.

Compliment her on that. Show her you're paying attention to what really matters to her. If she's stuck in a 9 to 5 that she hates, skip the work talk, and focus on what she loves to do outside of that grind. This compliment does two things. It shows you're tuned into her life and it makes her feel valued for her skills and passions. And let's be honest. Who wouldn't want to hear, that they're good at what they love doing.

7. “I feel like I'm so much better when I'm with you”

Here's a compliment that goes beyond the surface level and strikes a chord. I feel like I'm so much better when I'm with you. This isn't about her looks or the cool stuff she owns. It's about how she makes you feel as a person. It's a powerful way to say, you bring out the best in me. When you tell her this, you're acknowledging, that she elevates you, that she brings out qualities in you, that you might not even have known were there. It's a compliment to her character, her influence and the positive impact she has on you. So if you find yourself feeling more confident, more caring, or just plain happier when she's around. Don't keep it a secret. Let her know. It's the kind of compliment that not only makes her feel good, but also deepens the emotional connection between you too.

8. “You have such incredible hair/lips/eyes.”

You've probably told a woman she's beautiful, and that's great, but let's level this up. Get specific about what you find attractive about her. Trust me the devil's in the details. And she'll notice you're actually paying attention. For instance if she has mesmerizing eyes. Tell her they're captivating. If her lips are something you can't help but look at. Let her know they're amazing and hey don't underestimate the power of complimenting her skin, hair or nails. A lot of women put serious effort into those areas. And acknowledging it goes a long way. But a word of caution, steer clear of sexualizing the compliment especially if you're still getting to know each other. Stick to the features that won't make her uncomfortable. Being specific shows you're interested in her not just any woman.

9. “I admire your work ethic.”

A compliment that's often overlooked but incredibly impactful. I admire your work ethic. This isn't just empty flattery. It's a genuine acknowledgement of her dedication and drive. Especially in her career or any area she's passionate about. When you say this, you're telling her that you see and appreciate her hustle, her skills and her talents. This kind of compliment goes beyond surface level attraction. It's about recognizing her as a complete person. One who has goals and is working hard to achieve them. And let's be real. Who doesn't want to be valued for their accomplishments. So if you see her putting in the hours, acing projects or generally killing it in her field. Don't hold back. Let her know you admire her work ethic. It'll make her feel validated and show her that you're paying attention to more than just her looks.

10. “What do you think?”

Sometimes the best compliment isn't even a statement. It's a question. Specifically, what do you think? Now, you might be wondering how a question can be a compliment. Well, when you ask for her opinion on something she knows a lot about. You're essentially saying, I value your expertise in judgment. Whether it's about her field of work. A hobby she's passionate about or even a subject you know she loves to discuss. Asking her opinion makes her feel respected and valued. It's like saying, I admire your intelligence and I think you could offer some real insight here. So, the next time you're faced with a decision or just curious about something she's good at. Don't hesitate to ask her what she thinks. It's a subtle but powerful way to show you care about her thoughts and that's a compliment any woman would appreciate. Alright, there you have it. Some killer compliments that go beyond the usual. . . you're beautiful and really make an impact. Remember the key to a great compliment is to make it genuine, specific and about more than just looks. Show her you're paying attention to who she is. Not just what she looks like. It'll set you apart from the rest.

Bonus Knowledge:

Here's how to flirt with literally any girl. Guaranteed. It's called magnifying. Magnifying is a technique I created and use all the time. In order to maintain and create interesting conversations between me and a girl I'm romantically interested in. Basically what you're going to do is magnify, or exaggerate whatever it is she says, into something that's funny, ridiculous, and most importantly playful. This is perfect for creating a playful and flirty vibe with a girl so that she'll be more open. And interested in talking to you. The beauty of magnifying is that you can also practice it in guys as well as girls. And when you use it on guys, it'll make you seem a lot funnier and charismatic. If you really want to get good at this trick, I recommend practicing on everyone you talk too. Here's a basic example of what magnifying is. Let's say a girl tells you she likes going to the gym. One way you could magnify this is by saying something like. . . oh does that mean you'll have bigger muscles than me? Or oh, does that mean you can press more than me? It's a simple way to make a conversation more playful and more emotionally charged, and it gives you more ammunition to make conversation, more romantic or sexual.

The Real Secret:

Date the woman who wants everyone to know you're together. The woman who makes her feelings obvious to you. The woman who invites you to see her family. The woman who holds your hand in public so men know she's taken. The woman who misses you when you are gone. The woman who is honest with you even if it's hard for her. The woman who makes plans with you. The woman who introduces you as her boyfriend. The woman who calls instead of texts. The woman who cares about how your day was. The woman who asked to see your beautiful face not news. The woman who talks to her mom about you. The woman who puts effort into your relationship. The woman who wants to take cute pictures. The woman who is loyal. The woman who loves you as deeply as you love her. Some people may say this is a lot to ask for, but it's simply respect. Something everyone deserves. And there is a saying: That to love someone deeply gives you strength. Being loved by someone deeply gives you courage.

Bonus Material:

Compliments That Make A Woman Fall For You!

It is a strong thing to say the right words at the perfect moment to the right woman. But here is the thing most people forget. The words are not everything. It is also about how you truly see her when you say them. Many guys just spend their time looking at a woman's appearance. Her body shape, her grin, her hair. And while she may give a polite smile, while in return. She has heard these exact words many, many times. From men who never bothered to see anything deeper than her outside look.

But you! Your approach is different. You want her to experience something new. You want her to feel actually seen; deeply understood and completely safe. You want her to feel that her whole heart and her inner self are being recognised. Not just her physical presence, that is the kind of phrase that sticks with her. The kind that lasts long after the conversation is over, long after you have left. And that is when a woman truly starts to feel affection. Not because of wanting her. But because of a genuine feeling of closeness. If you are tired of being passed over. If you feel like the women you care for never show the same level of interest you put in, this message is for you.

Once you figure out how to give a woman praise that connects with her deepest feelings. Not just her self worth. Everything will start to shift. The honest fact is; men have never been given wrong ideas. You were taught that only being self assured is enough to win women, that having a lot of money, a great appearance or being successful would make you very appealing. But consider this question. If those things were truly the key. Why are so many rich and handsome men still not noticed or simply past by?

Here is the real fact: Liking someone is not about logic. It is all about feelings. And the quickest route into a woman's heart is not with expensive gifts or smart dating tricks. But by speaking to her emotions, by meeting her need to be recognised. In a world that always tells her to keep smiling, to look perfect, to hide her worries and act like everything is okay.

Women start to love men who help them feel secure enough to just exist as they are. Men who do not criticise, who do not separate her into small pieces. And who do not see her as a list of points to check off. When you offer an honest piece of praise. One that is not an old over used line or a joke, that shows you don't care. And you say it with your complete focus. Her defences drop. Her protective outer layer fades. And maybe for the first time in a long while, she lets herself think about what it would be like to be loved with no rules. The type of love where she is completely free. These words of praise are not ways to trick her. They are doors leading to a genuine bond. And when they are said with sincerity. They can wake up a feeling inside her that, she may not have known was there.

Not every woman is ready to accept this. But the woman who is right for you will always remember the feeling you gave her. So listen closely now. Because what you are about to learn can completely change how women react to you from now on. There is a quality, that is not valued enough and that is peace. This is especially true in a world where everyone is hurrying, trying to beat others. Trying to shout louder, just so people will notice them. Being peaceful is becoming very uncommon. So uncommon that people begin to think being confused and troubled is love, or that feeling excited is real passion.

But here is the plain fact! If a woman gives you a feeling of calm. If just being near her stops the worried thoughts inside you. If she makes a space feel more secure? Simply by entering it. Do not keep that idea hidden. Tell her this, let her know; you make my life feel more steady and calm. Those words are very important, they are meaningful. This is especially true for a woman who is fighting secret challenges every single day. She might be smiling, working hard, appearing pleasing, strong for everyone else. But deep down she is worn out. Spread too thin. Constantly trying to show that she is good enough.

So when a man sees this and says, spending time with you makes me feel quiet inside, like I can really take a deep break. Something major changes within her. She is surprised in a very good way. Because most of the nice things she hears are shallow. You look great, you are very attractive. I like your figure. Phrases like these are said over and over until they stop meaning anything. But when a man truly observes her and says, that her own spirit brings peace. That changes everything. That is not simple praise. That is true focus. This shows that you noticed her true inner self. Not just what she looks like. That is true closeness. That is being present with your feelings.

And for a woman who is only used to being appreciated when she is perfect and acting a certain way for the public. Hearing that she brings calm just by being herself, creates a deep sense of trust.

You stop being a regular guy. You no longer mix it with everyone else. You become a person she cannot forget. Because you did not look at her face or her outfit. You respected her inner self. And that creates a chance for more. It lets her relax to have faith in you, to open up.

Most guys believe that liking someone is only about excitement. About a quick feeling of fire. About fast and intense chemistry. But fire fades away. Peace remains; peace helps to build a strong base. Peace gives space for love to become strong. And when she understands that just being near her makes you feel quiet inside. She realises she does not need to keep her walls up so high. Because you are not showing up with stress. You are not asking her for her attention, her physical presence or her strength. You are simply there focused and not asking for anything back. And she will hold on to that memory even if it was just for a short time. Even if it was only one talk. She will keep those words with her. She will think about them again on sad days when she feels ignored. She will recall the man who looked at her and saw calm, not just an act. That is the thing that makes her love you. That is what forms a real emotional bond. That is the type of man she will want to stay close to. Not because he impressed her greatly. Not because he tried to use tricks. But because he reminded her of who she truly is when all her different parts are set aside.

So do not think little of that kind of praise. Do not wait for the perfect chance. If a woman gives you a feeling of calm tell her. Let her know that being near her makes your world feel easier. That her whole being feels like a safe spot. Because in a world that always expects her to be stronger, improved and more outgoing. Hearing that she is perfectly fine as she is. That she is peace. Might be the exact thing she secretly wished to hear. That is how you become special. That is how you truly connect with her. That is how you are remembered. Not just in her thoughts, but in her deepest feelings.

Most guys never say these kind of things. Not because they do not feel them. But because they are too focused on the beauty they see right away. Her mouth, her body, her happy look. And of course there is nothing bad about noticing beauty. But if that is the only thing you ever talk about. You will never get to her inner self, because good looks grab someone's eye. But it is her thoughts and her deepness that make her impossible to forget.

Here is the fact! There are many, many women living their lives in this world hoping for someone to truly see how smart they are. Not in her job, not on a paper that lists her history. But in a very private feeling way. A woman wants her ideas to be noticed as much as her face is. She wants you to be interested in how she thinks about things. How she feels and how she links her life stories to her deeper emotions.

When you say to her, The way your thoughts are formed is amazing. You are not just saying a simple phrase. You are respecting her deepness. You are saying, I understand how you put your thoughts together. I like the way you add meaning to your words. And for a woman who is used to being judged only on her looks. That feels like a comfort. It tells her she is more than her appearance. That what she says is important. That her ideas encourage you. That you are interested in her thinking. Not just her outer look.

And that is the wonderful part. When a woman feels that her inner self is truly seen. She starts to shine even more brightly on the outside. Because her value seems more solid. You have reached a part of her, that most people never do; her secret inner life. And now she sees you in a new light as well. Because you are not simply looking at her. You are sharing in her experience. You can see how her eyes shine when she cares about what she talks about. You notice not just the small facts she mentions. But how she puts her stories together. The deep sense she adds to her words. You appreciate how she links her different ideas. And how she figures things out in her own specific way.

When you tell her I truly like the way you think. You are confirming her core self. The side of her that holds her understanding. Her ability to imagine, and her deep feelings. That is what causes women to feel attractive not in the actual words. But the care and focus behind them. Because it shows that you were quiet. You were hearing her. You were watching closely. And in a world filled with constant sounds and distractions, giving your full attention is uncommon. Men who do that are hard to find. And that is why she will keep thinking of you long after.

It is never truly about the clothes you choose for the date. It is not about the meal you cover the cost of. The most important thing is whether you actually saw her. If you noticed something in the way she spoke and said, the things you think about are truly amazing. That is the thought she will remember late at night. That is what she will write down later when she is by herself.

And here is the true lesson! When you talk to a woman's thinking side. You encourage her to share more. To let you see more of who she is. She begins to believe in you. She starts to feel comfortable. She tells you things she has never spoken to anyone else before. Because at that point the focus is not on trying to be appealing for you. It's about being truthful with you. That is the definition of a truly emotional bond.

So certainly tell her she is lovely. You should absolutely say that. But also tell her that her thoughts are beautiful. That her way of thinking interests you. That her ideas stay in your mind long after the evening is finished. That her words are remembered inside your heart. In a world full of simple compliments you become special when you look deeper. When you talk to the spirit that is visible through her eyes. That is when she does not just have a simple liking for you. That is when she genuinely connects with you. And it is from that point of deeper feeling that her attraction slowly changes into a real bond. This particular type of praise gets right to her inner core. Because true power is usually something you cannot see. It is the power that no one celebrates or applauds. The kind that is created quietly when no one is present. When no one is paying attention. When there is no prize, no praise and no cheering.

It is the very same power that most women carry around with them every single day without talking about it. And still almost no one notices it. Until you do. You have so much inner strength and you don't need to talk about it. Think about that idea for a minute. You are not praising her for something showy or overdone. You are not pointing out something that is made bigger than it is. You are seeing something that is totally real, that is hard to find. Because most people never notice the strength it takes for a woman to wake up and still put on a smile. To exist in a world that is always telling her to become smaller. Yet she still decides to care, to share, to keep having faith. That is what real power is. She might be spending hours working. Looking after her children, running a house, holding onto painful memories. Making sure her friends are okay. Dealing with her own concerns. Carrying the feeling of many years in her heart. And she is doing all of this without asking for any thanks.

But you actually see it. And when you tell her. That she is strong. Not because she makes a display of it. But because she keeps it quiet, that moments become very important. Because it is not just praise. It is a way of showing her who she is. It is like holding up a glass that shows her the person she has always been, but might have forgotten.

Do you ever think about how many women quietly cry in a private room so no one can hear? How many of them act like they are completely fine? Just so the people around them do not feel worried. How many women always put the needs of others before their own? Not because they want to suffer for others. But because they do not know how to ask for help without being seen as fragile.

So when a person appears. Whether for a quick chat, a friendly relationship or something deeper.

And sees that deep power and actually speaks about it. He is someone she will never forget. You become the first person who genuinely saw it. Who looked past the simple outer layer. Who noticed the quiet patience hidden behind her kind look. That is closeness. That is the way people talk to build trust. She might even look very surprised when you say it. Not because she thinks you are lying. But because she has never had those words said to her before. She is so used to continuing through life without being thanked. That hearing those words seems almost unbelievable. But deep in her soul she will always hold on to them. Because they were based on honesty. Based on your full attention. That is the difference between simply liking someone and having a true bond.

Any guy can try to chase a woman. Any guy can tell her that she looks good. But it requires a person who is real to see her deepest self. To respect her ability to bounce back and to say, you are a strong person. And the fact that you do not make a big deal of it. It makes it even more impactful. You are showing her that you notice things beyond what she presents to the world. You see who she is, even when she is not putting on an act for anyone. That kind understanding makes her feel safe. It allows her to feel more relaxed when she is near you. It makes her want to talk more. Because now she is not just being loved for her power. She is being appreciated for being human.

So if you meet a woman who acts with a quiet kindness? Who is careful and patient? Who does not complain! Yet clearly has many big worries to carry. Say something to her. Tell her that you see that in her. Tell her that you respect it. Because that might be the exact thing she has been hoping to hear. Even if she did not know it herself. And when you speak to that inner power. Not to use it, not to try and change it. But simply to give it respect. You become the person she can finally relax with. That is why she will never forget you. This is the type of praise that does not only reach her ears. It goes right to her soul. It remains with her. It stays in her thoughts long after the time has passed.

Because for a change you are not trying to place her into a specific group. You are simply reacting to the feeling of her being there. And in a world that cares too much about looks and being faultless. That kind of honest feeling is uncommon and very attractive. There is a certain quality in a person's spirit that is difficult to put into words. It pulls you toward them. Women are used to being criticised, looked at against others, sized up and given a score.

Since they were young girls they were taught to control their appearance, their happy faces, their way of acting to be nice, to be good looking; to be easy to get along with. But not too loud to be wanted. But not too clear about what they want. Over time that creates a feeling of protection around her heart. She learns how to be the person that others select. But not always how to be truly connected with. So when a person appears and says, that he feels a certain quality from her. Not because of her clothes. Not because of her makeup. Not because of how she walks. But because of the inner force she gives off. A part of her deep self opens up. Because now you are not seeing something she worked to create. You are feeling the force she naturally gives off. It is not about her actions. It is about her actual self.

And here is a fact! A lot of women do not even know they are doing this. They do not realise their way of being is so attractive. They are not trying to make it happen. They just exist in their honest way. Their quietness, their strength, their gentleness, their smartness. And when you sense that, when it causes a feeling inside you, and you speak it out loud. You become a person she will always remember. Because it is not fake. It is not a phrase you went over many times. It is genuine. And women can always tell when something is genuine. That one easy thing you say, tell her. I am not trying to control you. I am not trying to limit you. I am just paying attention to you. And I feel something I cannot even describe. But it makes me feel closer to you.

That kind of realness creates room. A space for feelings. A place for her to be more of who she is, without being scared. Because now she does not have to act for you. She does not have to ask herself, am I good enough? Am I making him feel impressed? No she can simply exist. And that is the point. When a woman truly grows and looks her best. The force she gives off is the most honest message a human can send. It cannot be acted out. It cannot be made to look better. It is the silent truth that brings people nearer or sends them away. And when her inner force pulls you closer.

When you feel that special connection between two spirits, say it out loud even if you have trouble speaking. Even if the words you use are not perfect. Just say it anyway. Because that kind of deep notice is what makes a woman pay close attention. Not because she is being charmed by tricks. But because she finally feels fully recognised. Not for her body, not for her face. But for her true self.

It makes a close feeling that regular words cannot create. And the best thing is, that you did not make it happen. You did not plan it out. You simply allowed yourself to feel it and had the bravery to speak it. That is how a connection based on feelings starts. So do not be afraid to say, I cannot exactly say what it is. But there is a special quality about you. Your whole presence shines a quietness and a peace that makes me calm.

Yours genuinely,

Marc Ferguson

At <http://marcferguson.com>